

Friends With You

Hazel was never my favorite dog. Somehow she always managed to come in second best. She never seemed to notice, though maybe she simply accepted it as her due. Whatever the reason, she would welcome me home, waiting in line behind Ace or Lucy, patiently hoping for her turn to be petted or have the ball thrown or be given a treat. She was friends with everyone. Her tail wag, her smile, her submissive posture, all made it clear that she was truly thankful to be near you. I think the world could use more of that simple attitude. So I've written Hazel's story for her. By talking about her friends, she shares her wisdom and insights into human and dog life. From her appreciation for Goldie, the golden retriever who invited her into her first real home, and Ace, the gruff dobie/rottie mix who chose her from the shelter because she was old and meek and wouldn't bother him with puppy playfulness, to Lucy, the rescued dog who claimed to be a dingo and had hardened her heart against all love. Hazel chooses to be friends with all of them. And with Molly, the loving, lonely woman who adopts her from the no-kill shelter. And Dennis, the humane society volunteer who uses Hazel's loyalty and unwavering commitment as a template to develop a lasting relationship. This book is for Hazel and for all the people who didn't have a chance to know her. If she met you, she would have been friends with you.
