

Vodka with Chocolate Chasers

With six days stretching ahead of them on the immense Trans-Siberian train journey from Beijing to Moscow, Edson and Louis have made sure to stock up on noodles, Danish butter cookies and Ritz biscuits. Their limited diet is soon augmented by endless vodka shots, a meal called Lulia Kebab and countless bowls of borscht. As they form a group with their fellow travellers, amongst them an irritating former astrologer and a magnificent retired bank manager, everyone soon begins regaling everyone else with bizarre stories of rampaging buffalo, jewel smugglers and urine-soaked, cockroach-infested hostels. Reviews from original publication in 2002: If you only buy one book this year, make it my autobiography, but if you buy two, make sure this very funny book is the other - FRANK SKINNERA quirky, original and funny novel that defies pigeon-holing - THE DAILY EXPRESS
