

Lalla Rookh: An Oriental Romance (Classic Reprint)

Then swift his haggard brow he turn d
To the fair child, who fearless sat 148 Blest tears of soul-felt penitence.
151 And now behold him kneeling there By the child's side, in humble prayer
..152 Joy, joy for ever! my task is done. ...
154 THE FIRE WORSHIPPERS. ORNAMENTAL TITLE-PAGE 167 I part from the binding of a Shah Namah, in the East India House Library. And sits alone in that high bower Watching the still and shining deep 169 Oh ever thus, from childhood's hour, I've seen my fondest hopes decay. 181 Here, maiden, look weep--blush to see All that thy sire abhors in me!
185 Fiercely he broke away, nor stopp d,
Nor look d but from the lattice dropp d 189 The morn hath risen clear and calm,
And o'er the Green Sea palely shines
..192 'Tis HAFED name of fear, whose sound Chills like the muttering of a charm! ...197 His Chiefs stood round each shining blade Upon the broken altar laid 205 This very night his blood shall steep These hands all over ere I sleep! 211 And o'er the wide, tempestuous wave Looks, with a shudder, to those towers 216 And snatch d her breathless from beneath This wilderment of wreck and death 222 Shuddering, she look d around there lay A group of warriors in the sun 227 Tremble not, lore, thy Gheber she. ... Ancient Persian
